TEN YEARS TO REFLECT.

Two Young Men Who Will Not Hold Up Trains for a While.

North Platte, Neb., Aug. 29.—Hans and Knuteson, two young farmers who held up the overland express on the U. P. at Brady Island a week ago, are now en route to the penitentiary, under sentence of ten years each for their crime. They pleaded guilty, and said they were impelled to do the work by the belief that a great fortune might easily be made. They secured less than $50 from the safe, which they blew open in the express car.

CLOUDBURST IN ILLINOIS.

Causes a Great Deal of Destruction and Some Deaths.

Bloomington, Ill., Aug. 28.—A cloudburst, accompanied by a tornado, swept over the vicinity of Bloomington yesterday afternoon, the raging torrents followed by water courses in a few minutes sweeping trees away. The tents of the Wild West show at the fair grounds were also demolished, and 5000 people were panic-stricken and drenched, but escaped without injury. Mesdames Riddle and Roberts, of Heyworth, while driving home with their daughters, aged 2 and 7 respectively, had their buggy swept from a bridge by the flood. The children were drowned but the mothers were rescued.

"WHEN THIEVES FALL OUT."

A History of Swindling and Cold-Blooded Murder Carefully Planned.

Indianapolis, Aug. 28.—Additional evidence has been secured in the Holmes tragedy, every detail showing that the Pietzel boy was murdered in the cottage at Irvington by Holmes, the body buraed in the stove at night and the charred bones shoved into the chimney hole. It was learned yesterday that the trunk which so mysteriously left the hotel was taken to Irvington by train, and from the platform removed by Holmes to the house. It contained some clothing of the girls, which he wanted to dispose before taking them to Toronto, where they were murdered. Mrs. Peitzel, mother of the murdered boy, who was telegraphed to at Galva, Ill., has arrived and identified the trunk and the boy's coat; other articles which belong to him have also been found in the chimney hole.

Coroner Carter took charge of the bones and held an inquest, at which officers and others testified. The grand jury is in session, and Judge McRay orders it to proceed at once with the taking of testimony, and to-day witnesses are being examined. The court said every effort would be made to bring Holmes here for trial.

New York, Aug. 29.—A Herald special from Little Rock, Ark., says: J. C. Allen, alias Caldwell, horse thief, now in jail here, has made a statement to Warden Moore regarding his knowledge of H. H. Holmes and his operations. In the course of his statement Allen said he met Holmes in Tennessee in 1892, and met Pietzel in Chicago later. Allen further said that Minnie Williams, who was living with Holmes as his wife, was present at the meeting in St. Joseph, Mo., of Holmes, Pietzel and himself. The Minnie Williams property in Fort Worth was then and there deeded to Allen by Minnie Williams. The deal was made with the distinct understanding that it was to be a swindling operation. Allen thinks Minnie Williams was persuaded or scared by Holmes into making the transfer of the property. A few days after the property was transferred by Allen to Pietzel, Holmes made a transfer without Allen's knowledge or consent. Then, Allen continued, the party with the exception of Miss Williams, went to Fort Worth, where they were joined by Pat Quinlan. The latter and Holmes talked of a plan to kill Pietzel, who had $10,000 insurance on his life, because he was drinking and apt to talk too much, moreover, he knew too much. Allen was to assist, and a trunk was bought in Fort Worth in which to put the body. Pietzel was then in Kansas City.

At this point, Allen says, Holmes patted Allen on the back and said: "Mascot, it is worth $1000 and a trip to Long Branch and from there to California, and more buildings." Pietzel was to be "fired" in Chicago.

Holmes asked Allen to insure his life for $10,000, which Holmes was to collect in his own peculiar way, but Allen thought of the large trunk bought for Pietzel, and would not do it. He declared that he then parted company with Holmes and has not seen him since. He absolutely denied having participated in any murders.

Allen says he last saw Minnie Williams at St. Joseph, Mo., at the meeting referred to. He thinks she went to India, as he saw letters from her, and knows Holmes sent $1000 to her there.

Referring to the "Castle," Allen says: "It was used for a death trap. I heard Holmes and Quinlan talk about putting people out of the way. A stranger to the city during the World's Fair was decoyed into the "Castle," and murdered for his money. He did not have as much money as Holmes thought, only $3500. A bright little boy was enticed into the "Castle" during the fair, and held in a room for five days for a reward for his recovery. No reward being offered they were afraid to let him out, and the gas was turned into the room at night and he was suffocated. I was not in Chicago when Annie Williams was killed, but I was at the "Castle" two or three days afterwards. Holmes and Quinlan coolly discussed the manner of her murder to me. Holmes' version was that she was knocked in the head with a stool by Minnie Williams, and was then given some drug by Holmes to make her die easy. The cause of the killing, as explained by Holmes, was that one of the girls must be put out of the way and that he could manage Minnie easier than he could Annie. Minnie Williams was crazy in love with Holmes, and jealous of her sister, as Holmes was paying her some attention, too, and he took particular pains to increase the jealousy, so as to work her up to the point of killing Annie.

The death trap in the "Castle" was made by Quinlan, who is a fine mason, and a negro, whose name I forget. Quinlan is equally guilty with Holmes in taking human life, Holmes doing the planning, and Quinlan the execution. Quinlan's wife knew of the murder of her husband and children. Holmes and she had for a very long time been confidential, and she knew what was going on."

THE OLD WORLD AND NEW

Bank of England Statement—Suicide of a Playwright—Duel to Death.

Rochester Tailors and Employers Inflexible—Knights Go Home—Big Rate Cut.

London, Aug. 29.—The weekly statement of the Bank of England, issued today, shows the following changes, compared with the previous account: Total reserve, increased £984,000; circulation, decreased $167,000; bullion, increased £1,196,000; public deposits, decreased £328,000; notes reserve, increased £1,052,000; government securities, unchanged. Proportion of the Bank of England's reserve to liability, which last week was 59.17 per cent., is now 60.11 per cent. The Bank of England's rate of discount remains unchanged at 2 per cent.

Paris, Aug. 28.—Hippolyte Raman, the playwright committed suicide last night by shooting himself with a revolver.

Ajaccio, Corsica, Aug. 28.—A duel with pistols was fought near here to-day, by Signor Benedetti, a journalist, and Dr. Alexandris. The latter was killed. The quarrel which brought about the encounter grew out of a political discussion.

Berlin, Aug. 29.—The torpedo boat No. 14 was capsized yesterday in the North sea, and thirteen persons are reported drowned.

Amsterdam, Aug. 29.—Fire at Hoogs Zwaluwe, Brabant, destroyed forty-three houses. Fifty families have been rendered homeless, but no loss of life is reported.

New York, Aug. 29.—All hope of Robert Windman, who jumped overboard from his yacht Adelaide, after the collision with the iron steamboat Persus, last Monday, being found alive, have been abandoned by friends of the young man.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 29.—The report telegraphed from this city to the effect that the yacht Pilgrim had been wrecked in St. Clair lake, and 25 people lost, is without foundation. The yacht is lying at her moorings in this city.

Troy, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Amelia E. Haswell, the city missionary, who was accused of aiding in the escape of Oliver Curtis Perry, the train robber, from Wattawan insane criminal hospital, was taken into custody on the arrival of the train from Hoosick Falls this morning. She came willingly to-day and surrendered quietly, declining to make any statement other than that she had no part in the plot for Perry's escape, and that her connection with that noted criminal was entirely innocent and only in the direction of his reformation. She was met at the depot by many co-workers in the missionary field, and by several ex-criminals whom she had befriended. One of them, Edward Hinton, was released from jail but two days ago.

Clinton, Iowa, Aug. 29.—Eight prisoners escaped from the county jail last night by drilling out of their cage and tearing a hole in the ceiling.

New York, Aug. 29.—At 3 p.m. money on call was easy at 1 per cent.

ROCHESTER TAILOR STRIKE.

Both Sides, as Usual, Determined to Stand Out to the Last.

Rochester, N. Y., Aug. 28.—The strike situation among the garment workers remains unchanged, except that about 50 more hands went out to-day. The bosses show no inclination to accede to the demands of the strikers, and the latter are firm in their intention to fight to the end.

WHERE'S THE ASSOCIATION.

The Grand Trunk Makes the Biggest Cut on Record.

Chicago, Aug. 29.—The Grand Trunk has announced a round trip rate of $18 from Chicago to Coney Island, via New York, excursions to run September 4 and 5, return tickets good to the 20th. This is the cheapest rate ever made between Chicago and New York, and causes much adverse comment among rival roads.

THE KNIGHTS GOING HOME.

Boston's Great Carnival of Knights Templar is Over.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 29.—The session of the Grand encampment re-opened at Masonic Temple at 10 a.m., when the election of officers was taken up. The conclave of the Men's masonic order of the Eastern Star, also formally opened at Unity hall. Out of town excursions have been as numerous and attractive as on yesterday, and visiting commanders have been lavishly entertained. To-night the exodus of knights will begin, several commanders leaving for home. A large number go to-morrow.

The grand encampment of Knights Templar elected Right Eminent Sir Knight Warren Large Thomas, of Kentucky, grand master, to succeed Most Eminent Sir Knight Hugh McCurdy. Three hundred votes were cast, of which the successful candidate received 297.

JOURNEY TO MASHONALAND

Inconveniences and Discomforts the Chief Features—Everything Very Expensive.

Salisbury, Mashonaland, July 10.—We arrived at Capetown on the 9th of June, after an uneventful but pleasant trip of three weeks from Southampton. The Royal Mail steamers make the trip in fourteen days, the fare being three guineas more than by the intermediate or cargo boats, the cabin accommodation being the same in both cases. Cape Town is situated at the base of Table mountain. It is a nice place, but the people are very slow and easy going compared with the American and Canadians; they do not seem to think that time is of any value. A stranger has great difficulty in finding what he wants. All the loading and unloading of steamers and ships is done by Kaffirs, bossed by a white man; in fact all the hard work except that of mechanics is done by the natives (called boys here), even to cooking, some of them being pretty fair cooks. The natives are paid about £2 per month, out of which they board themselves, being provided with a barracks to sleep and cook in. They do not wear very much clothing, some having only a small piece of sacking or cloth of some kind around the loins, others cut three holes in a sock for the head and arms, and again others wear a full suit of clothes, and some simply a vest or coat with the usual loin cloth, which makes them look rather ridiculous.

The farmers of Cape Colony are just beginning to awaken to the fact that they are able to compete with California in raising fruit of all kinds, and have gone so far as to engage the services of four California fruit growers (practical men) to teach them how to cultivate fruit trees. Labor being much cheaper and a ready market in England they ought to be able to compete with California, particularly as there is no need of the fruit being transferred, as there is in the American trade. The best district for fruit is Natal, where all kinds of fruit grow readily and is very cheap, oranges selling for 6 cents a dozen retail, figs and other fruit being equally cheap. Mossel Bay, Port Elizabeth and East London are all thriving towns very nicely situated, the principal drawback being the loading and unloading of steamers in barges, there being no wharves where they can unload, on account of the water being very shallow for a long distance from the shore. Natal is a little better, as steamers can cross the bar into the river at high tide. There is a dredger continually at work, and it is the intention of the authorities to build the breakwater further out, which ought to materially help to prevent the formation of a bar, as it is formed by the heavy swell from the sea.

The next stopping place is Delagoa Bay, which is in Portuguese territory, and a very unhealthy place, on account of the land being low and swampy, causing fever. This was the seat of the late trouble between the natives and the Portuguese, the affair being settled by the natives paying an indemnity of £1,000. The coast from here to Beira (pronounced Byra) is very low and extremely unhealthy. Beira is situated at the mouth of the Pungwell river. A small steamer runs from there to Fontesville, connecting with the train, which leaves once a week. At present there is a freight train every day, carrying the freight that has accumulated. The track is very narrow, being only two feet wide. The engines are not very powerful. We had to stop two or three times to get up steam before we could climb some of the grades. In one case the grade is so steep they have to make use of what they call a switchback—that is, going ahead and backing alternately in a zigzag direction until they reach the top. The cattle cars are open cars covered in with wire netting similar to mosquito netting, to keep out the tsetse fly. If the flies get inside it is sure death to all cattle or horses. As a rule the animals do not feel the effects of the bite until the first rain falls, when they fall sick and die. The fly belt ends at the 80 mile peg, which is the first place the horses or cattle can be fed or given water after leaving Fontesville.

The Pungwee river is full of crocodiles and hippopatami; but we did not see any, as we left Beira very late in the afternoon and it was very wet all the way up. The river is a tidal one and very shallow, the steamers often going aground. The accommodation and food all along the road to Salisbury was very bad. Sometimes we only had a stretcher to sleep on, without blankets, and at other times we had to sleep on the floor with nothing but a sail cloth under us. The food was poor and very often not enough of it to satisfy us all; costing from 3 shillings to 3s. and 6d. a meal, equal to 75c. and 87c. respectively. It costs from four to five dollars a day for meals and bed all along the road from Beira to Salisbury, and you are only allowed 30 lbs. of baggage on the stage coach. Anything over that has to be paid for at the rate of 18c. per lb. It is best to take only such things as you require with you on the coach and have the remainder forwarded by ox wagon, which will take about a month or six weeks at this season of the year, on account of the feed being short and dried up.

A peculiar feature of this country is that almost everything is very small, the native cattle and chickens being very undersized; also the mules, etc.—almost like pignies. Chickens sell from 1s. to 2s. each, one of which is scarcely enough for one person's dinner. Eggs are about the size of grouse eggs, and cost from 10c. to 18c. each. All kinds of vegetables are very dear, potatoes selling for 1s. 3d. per lb., small cabbages 1s. each, carrots and turnips 10c. to 20c. per bunch (small). These things are all sold by auction every Wednesday and Saturday morning at the market hall. Sometimes the same articles bring three or four different prices, according to the demand. If an article is in great demand it will bring a good price; but if it is a drug on the market it can be bought for next to nothing. Besides the merchandise auctions there is a regular auction every Saturday morning at the auctioneer's rooms. One very often gets a good bargain there. A friend of mine bought 20 doz. photographic plates there last week for 5s.

I will give you more information about the country and its prospects, advantages and disadvantages in a future letter. At present I am busy getting letters ready for the mail, which leaves shortly. H.

THE BENEDICTINE BREWERY.

Another Protest Filed Against the Monks Making Beer for Sale.

Washington, Aug. 29.—The protest against the manufacture and sale of beer by the Benedictines of St. Vincent's Abby, of Beattie, Pa., is still under consideration by Archbishop Satolli. A second protest has been received here, this time coming from the temperance society of Buffalo, of which Rev. Father Zurcher is president.

Mgr. Satolli has sent a letter to the abbott of the Benedictines, referring to the complaints. They have forwarded a response saying there was no scandal connected with the sale of beer, which they stated was done merely to cover the cost of manufacture for their own consumption and the internal revenue tax. The total amount manufactured, it is stated, was in the neighborhood of four barrels a week, which they regarded as an insignificant output. The Benedictines announce, however, their readiness to see what can be done in the matter of quieting the criticisms that have so freely been made.

A second letter has just been received by the archbishop in which the abbott of the Benedictines refers to a pamphlet circulated in Pennsylvania criticizing their production of beer, and reiterating their attitude already outlined. Mgr. Satolli has not so far formulated any definite opinion in regard to the matter.

MINOR MATTERS IN CANADA.

Engineers in Session in Montreal—Ontario Cattle for Northwest.

Montreal, Aug. 28.—The C.P.R. division of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers is in session here in biennial convention. Over thirty delegates are in attendance, representing over 500 men from Halifax to Vancouver. Ashe Kennedy, of Winnepeg, presided, and the election of officers resulted as follows: Chairman, Ashe Kennedy, Winnipeg; vice-chairman, J. Scott, Toronto Junction; secretary-treasurer, Charles Pope, Rat Portage. The convention will last four days.

Casselman, Aug. 28.—A fire here yesterday destroyed a saw mill, about 2,000 cords of wood, a million feet of lumber and 1,000 pieces of timber. The loss is about $35,0000, half covered by insurance.

Toronto, Aug. 28.—A Montreal agent is in Toronto negotiating for 1000 head of yearling and two-year-old cattle for the Allen ranch in the Northwest. This experiment may lead to the development of a large and profitable trade between Ontario and the Northwest.

Galt, Aug. 28.—The agricultural hall in Dickson park was burned yesterday. It is owned by the South Waterloo Agricultural Society, and is also used as an armory by the Militia department. Loss, about $40,000.

Huntsville, Aug. 28.—The barn of George Hutchins near this village took fire from the bursting of a coil oil lantern. Hutchins' son and two boys went to the barn to sleep, and when the lantern was blown out it burst. Joyce, 14 years, perished in the flames, and Hutchins' son was badly burned.

Chatham, Aug. 28.—On July 9 last the neighborhood of Merlin and Port Alma was thrown into a state of intense excitement by the discovery in a heap of ashes of some human remains, under circumstances strongly suggesting the commission of a murder. From the result of Detective John Murray's inquiries and examinations, Murray is satisfied that the man, whoever he was, had been done to death, perhaps to hide traces of another crime, and he is determined to probe the mystery to the bottom.

None But Ayer's at the World's Fair.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla enjoys the extraordinary distinction of having been the only blood purifier allowed an exhibit at the World's fair, Chicago. Manufacturers of other sarsaparillas sought by every means to obtain a showing of their goods, but they were all turned away under the application of the rule forbidding the entry of patent medicines and nostrums. The decision of the World's fair authorities in favor of Ayer's Sarsaparilla was in effect as follows: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla is not a patent medicine. It does not belong to the list of nostrums. It is here on its merits."

CONNECTED BY TELEGRAPH.

Washington and Mexico can Now Say Good Morning to Each Other.

Washington, D.C., Aug. 29.—The Post this morning says: "For the first time in the history of American newspapers, a direct wire for transmission of news connects the capital of the United States with that of Mexico. Hitherto dispatches between this country and the city of Mexico have travelled in a round about way. Some came overland, others travelled underwater to Galveston, then began a long journey to the East; the way was devious and much valuable time was lost. Last night, however, by the Associated Press leased wire, was inaugurated a direct rapid connection between Washington and the city of Mexico. News of the two capitals can now be flashed from the one city to another in an incredibly short space of time. This morning for the first time a full report of Associated Press news as printed in the Mexican capital, is published in the two cities simultaneously.

BOULDERS ON THE TRACK.

Attempt to Wreck a Railroad Train Near Tekoa.

Spokane, Aug. 28.—An attempt to wreck an Oregon Railway and Navigation passenger train was made near Tekoa to-day. Miscreants had piled up rocks and boulders at a turn in the road. When the engineer saw the obstruction he reversed his engine, but struck the rocks with great force. The pilot of the engine was partly wrecked, and some of the rocks lodged under the lever bar. It required nearly two hours to clear away the obstruction and repair the damage. It is an ideal spot for a hold-up, and some of the train crew were inclined to this theory and explained the absence of the robbers upon the ground that when their plans to throw the train into the ditch miscarried they lost their nerve and fled. The engineer and conductor think that it was the work of ranchers who wished to revenge themselves upon the road for the loss of stock killed by the cars. An attempt was made about two months ago to wreck the passenger train at the same place.

American News.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 28.—The board of health has received a communication from H. H. Wilson, English vice-consul general at New York, asking as to the extent of the prevalence of anthorax among the cattle of this state. It was referred to the agricultural department.

Buena Vista, Col., Aug. 28.—A rolling rock struck a Colorado Midland passenger train near Fisher, wrecking the baggage and smoking cars. F. J. Connor, of New York, said to be a prominent banker of that city, was killed and two others injured. A trick pony valued at $1500, belonging to the Fay Circus Co., was in the baggage car and was killed. Connor was standing on the platform at the time of the accident.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 28.—The business of the triennial conclave of the Knights Templars was begun in earnest by the Grand Encampment, while the round of pleasure was resumed by the great body of the knights with the liveliest enthusiasm.

New Rochelle, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Foreman David R. Williams and two press riggers of the Cottrell Printing Press Manufacturing Company were at work last night removing an old press from the Knickerbocker Press Company's building. The large iron frame that they were taking from the elevator tipped over on Williams. The other men and Williams used their united strength in holding up the frame, but they soon became exhausted and the frame then gradually pinned Williams to the floor. The men shouted for help, but there was no response, as everybody had left the establishment. Williams and the men were worn out by their exertions. Seeing there was no help for him, Williams called to his companions: "God help me; let it drop and put me out of my agony!" The two men were in a fainting condition from supporting the frame. They withdrew their hands, and the mass of iron fell upon Williams, crushing him to death.

New York, Aug. 28.—The report of the receivers of the Northern Pacific railway for the year ending June 30, 1895, shows: Gross earnings, $6,115,299; increase, $953,864; surplus, $535,974, against a deficiency of $1281,351 in 1894.

THE SULTAN'S MEDIATORS.

Wants Russia and France to Use Their Influence With England.

Constantinople, Aug. 28.—The Sultan has sent a dispatch to the Turkish ambassador at Paris and St. Petersburg, bitterly complaining of Great Britain's attitude regarding Armenia, which attitude is described as discourteous and derogatory to the Sultan's prestige. The dispatch concludes with an appeal to the French and Russian governments to use their good offices with Great Britain in order to induce her to modify her present attitude.

NO. 249.

A BY-LAW

To Amend the Ross Bay Cemetery By-Law.

Whereas it is expedient to amend the Ross Bay Cemetery By-Law, 1894;

1. Section 45 of the Ross Bay Cemetery By-Law, 1894, and the forms "C" and "D" in the said section referred to, and contained in the schedule to the said By-Law, are hereby repealed, and the said By-Law shall in all other respects remain in force and be read as if the said section 45 and the said forms "C" and "D" therein referred to had not originally been inserted in the said By-Law.

2. The following Section shall be inserted in lieu of Section 45 so repealed in said By-Law:

"45. Every application for permission to inter the body of any person shall be accompanied by a certificate of a duly qualified medical practitioner setting forth clearly his opinion as to the cause of death."

3. This By-Law may be cited as the Ross Bay Cemetery By-Law, 1894, Amendment By-Law, 1895.

Passed the Municipal Council the 15th day of August, 1895.

Reconsidered, adopted and finally passed the Council the 19th day of August, 1895.

WELLINGTON J. DOWLER, C.M.C.

NOTICE.

The above is a true copy of a by-law passed by the Municipal Council of the City of Victoria, on the 19th day of August, A. D. 1895, and all persons are hereby required to take notice that anyone desirous of applying to have such by-law, or any part thereof, quashed, must make his application for that purpose to the Supreme Court within one month next after the publication of this by-law in the British Columbia Gazette, or he will be too late to be heard in that behalf.

WELLINGTON J. DOWLER, C.M.C.

Proposed Local Improvement.

Notice is hereby given that under and by virtue of the Municipal Act, 1892, and Amending Acts, and By-laws made thereunder, the Corporation of the City of Victoria propose to lay a pavement of wooden blocks upon a concrete foundation on the streets or portions of streets particularly hereunder mentioned, in the City of Victoria, and to assess the cost thereof against the property fronting thereon.

STREETS OR PORTIONS THEREOF PROPOSED SO TO BE PAVED.

View Street, from Broad Street to Douglas Street;

Broad Street, from Fort Street to Yates Street;

Government Street, from Broughton Street to Johnson Street;

Yates Street, from Douglas Street to Wharf Street;

Fort Street, from Government Street to Douglas Street.

ASSESSMENT PROPOSED TO BE LEVIED THEREFOR.

View Street, $7.60 per foot frontage;

Broad Street, $8.60 per foot frontage.

Government Street, $10.50 per foot frontage;

Yates Street, $10.50 per foot frontage;

Fort Street, $11.50 per foot frontage; divided into ten equal annual payments of interest and sinking fund.

The report of the City Engineer and City Assessor in connection with such proposed improvement and the assessment therefor upon particular lots is open for the inspection of any person at the office of the Assessor, City Hall.

Unless a Petition against such assessment by the owners of the real property, (fronting upon the streets or portions thereof proposed to be so improved), representing at least one half in value thereof, be sent to the said Council within fifteen days after publication of this notice such proposed improvement will be made as aforesaid.

By order,

WELLINGTON J. DOWLER, C. M. C.

THE INDIANS ARE QUIET.

No Serious Trouble Anticipated with the Kalispell People.

Washington City, Aug. 28.—The Kalispell Indians, over whose lands a dispute has arisen with white settlers, are regarded by the Indian bureau officials as quiet and peaceable, and no serious trouble with them is anticipated. The dispute over these lands is an old one, and is due to the absence of surveys. The Indians belong to the Colville agency in Washington; and an agreement was made with them some time ago providing for their removal to the Flathead reservation, further to the north. The agreement has not yet been ratified by Congress, but in the event of a failure of ratification the Indians are to be settled on allotments on their present reservations. Captain John W. Bubb, their agent, notified the Indian bureau last May that the white settlers were encroaching on their lands, and was instructed to go where the encroachments were being made, mark out the boundary line and warn the white settlers to keep off the lands. The trouble arises directly from the fact that the settlers have been granted land that laps on the reservation, and the general land office issued orders a month ago to the land office there to issue no further patents for lands in the neighborhood of the reservation.

SKIRMISHES IN CUBA.

The Patriots Deliver Their Blow and Retreat as Usual.

Havana, Aug. 28.—A column of troops numbering 240 men, commanded by Captain Francis Amodor, in the Tanamo district, it is officially announced, had a brush with an insurgent force, commanded by Major Maja, and numbering, it is claimed, 400 men. The government troops are said to have captured the positions occupied by the insurgents, who left three dead and four wounded on the field. Among the latter was the insurgent Captain Sindo. On the other side, it is said, only two men were wounded.

Official advices state that a body of 200 insurgents recently attacked a small convoy escorted by 25 guerrillas, at Gua Jenal, near Estermon, in the Sagua Tanamo district. The guerrillas, it is stated, made a heroic defence, and being reinforced by 50 Spanish infantry, attacked the insurgents in the rear. The latter were dispersed, leaving seven killed and 12 wounded on the field. The troops, it is asserted, lost two men killed and had one sergeant and three privates wounded.

New York, Aug. 27.—J. A. Henriques, formerly United States consul at Cardenas, Cuba, has just received a letter from Santiago, which reports that the people there are greatly stirred up by a report that the 25,000 Spanish troops to be sent to Cuba in October will be commanded by General Camilo Polaviejo. When the ten years' war began Polaviejo entered the army with the rank of sergeant. He was steadily promoted for bravery until he became general, and before the close of the war he was made governor of Santiago province. It was while governor that he gained a reputation for excessive cruelty. After the revolution Gen. Polaviejo was made captain-general of Havana, which office he occupied until three years ago, when he returned to Spain. The only time he was in the United States was about seven years ago, when he came here to marry a Havana girl. She refused him, saying she could never consent to be the wife of a man who had been so cruel to her countrymen. It is believed that on his arrival in Havana he will succeed General Martinez de Campos as captain-general of Cuba, and will be second in command of the army. Campos, it is expected, will then be free to take a more active part in the field.

NO MORE DURRANT JURORS.

The Special Panel Exhausted—Collapse of the Prisoner's Alibi.

San Francisco, Aug. 28.—In Judge Murphy's court this morning opposing counsel concentrated all their efforts to securing a twelfth juror to try Theodore Durrant. After a number had been excused for cause there remained about 40 names in the jury box, from which it was hoped to complete the panel. The morning was spent in a fruitless attempt to get an impartial citizen to serve. The panel was finally exhausted, so adjournment was necessary, as the 3000 veniremen selected in the beginning of the year to serve in the various twelve departments of the superior court had been called upon, securing only eleven of the twelve jurors required. Judge Murphy ordered the sheriff to collect 75 citizens to appear in court to-morrow to serve as jurors. Attorney Deuprey took formal exceptions to everything that had been done.

Durrant looked on with the calm and impenetrable demeanor which has characterized him from the beginning, and even from the time of his arrest. The young man's perfect self-control under all circumstances is beginning to attract some admiration, be he innocent or guilty. He passed most of the session in the perusal of a document which was believed to be a new affidavit for change of venue based on the difficulty of obtaining jurors, which the defence will argue indicated an overwhelming feeling in the community against the prisoner.

Durrant's alibi in the Minnie Williams case, so unexpectedly built by Marcus Burnett and Edward McPherson, has been shattered. Judge G. C. Groesinger, upon whom the young men depend for corroboration, declares positively that it was on the night of Thursday, April 11, and not on Friday, that the young fellows saw Durrant, if they saw him at all. "I am positive," said Judge Groesinger, "that I did not meet Burnett and McPherson on Friday night, April 12. It was on the night before that I met them. I do not wish to be in this case as a prop to the defence in this way. In the first place, Burnett and McPherson have not given a true account of what happened when I met them on Market street. I have known them for some time, having been connected with the militia. About nine o'clock on Thursday night I met both of them on Market street, near Powell. It was very near the Baldwin annex, and not in front of the Elite gallery, as they have asserted."

PANAMA AND CUBAN PATRIOTS.

Wants the Latter Looked Upon as Belligerents—Exhibition at Bogota.

Colon, Colombia, Aug. 28.—A resolution has been presented by the municipality of Panama asking the other municipalities of Colombia to join in petition to the government, asking it to recognize the Cuban patriots as belligerents.

There is a proposal at Bogato to erect an exhibition building there for foreign and domestic products.

FAVOR A GOLD STANDARD.

The German Trading Association of That View.

Augustburg, Bavaria, Aug. 28.—The German Trading Association, now in conference here, has adopted a resolution in favor of a gold standard.

Constantinople, Aug. 28.—Details have been received here of the recent attack made by a band of Bulgarians upon the Mahommedan village at Dospat, across the Turkish frontier, in the Rhodope mountains. The attack, it appears, occurred at dawn, and while the villagers were asleep. The Bulgarians used dynamite bombs and set fire to the houses when the inhabitants tried to escape; men, women, and children, it is claimed, were killed indiscriminately and, according to one version of the affair, three hundred persons perished.

FROM THE WEST COAST.

The steamer Maude, Captain Roberts, returned last evening from the West Coast. During the trip she encountered lots of fog, and for several days it rained heavily. The passengers from the coast were: John Piercy, Mrs. Campbell, W. Lorrimer, Miss Hide, R. A. Cunningham, Mrs. J. H. Seeley, P. Anderson, S. Peterson, S. Monsaas, B. Ness, J. Jackson, R. McKinley, Mrs. Walton, Mrs. Blackstaff, E. Wilson, four Indians and two Chinamen.

The Indians are part of a party of Kitkatlas who have been on the West Coast for several months hunting sea otter. They sent down 14 skins some time ago, and have brought down 14 more. The two lots brought close on to $10,000.

Samples of ore obtained in Alberni by Mr. Sutton, the government agent, were brought down. The balance of the cargo consisted of twelve hundred cases of salmon from the Clayoquot cannery, a lot of oil and miscellaneous freight.

FRUIT IN ALCOHOL FUMES.

New Method of Successful Preservation Which Has Found Favor.

Fruit dealers and importers of this city are discussing a process for keeping fruit fresh, which has been described in a report to the state department made by Henry P. du Bellet, United States consul at Rheims.

The report tells in detail the result of experiments made by A. Petit, chief of the laboratory of horticultural researches, in the National Horticultural School of Versailles. Impressed with the powerful action of alcoholic vapors on the mould which generally appears on the surface of fruits in a damp atmosphere, Mr. Petit noticed that pears and apples kept for several months in a surrounding saturated with vapors of alcohol and water, even when previously showing signs of approaching decay, while fruits in every particular identically similar, stored under the same conditions, but not exposed to the action of alcoholic vapors, became rapidly covered with mould and decayed.

Going further, he took advantage of his observation, and experimented with grapes, the fruit most susceptible to mould. Grapes left two months in a recipient containing a bottle of alcohol and placed in a damp cellar, were removed in a perfect state of preservation. Each bunch had lost but two to four grapes, the stalks were perfectly green and the fruit firm, full and palatable, having all the qualities of fresh plucked fruit.

Similar fruit, cut from the same vines, was stored in the recipient without the presence of alcohol, but laid on wool shavings. In less than a month the grapes were covered with mould and badly decayed.

"I agree with Mr. Petit that the processes have many advantages," said a member of a fruit house in State street to me. "It is already receiving the consideration of fruit growers in this country. The operation is certainly cheap, simple and easy of application. An advantage which would be appreciated in its use, if successful, these days, would be the longed-for opportunity to hold fine fruits until fair prices for their disposal could be utilized.

"I understand that California fruit men are now storing their products in receptacles constructed after the manner of that described in Mr. Petit's experiments, but none have yet reached this city in anything except old time refrigerators. We are awaiting with great interest the arrival of lemons, grapes and raisins from Italy, where I understand the process has met great favor, and is being extensively resorted to."—Exchange.

SHE WAS HYPNOTIZED.

Miss Abigail Spates Danced While Under a Strange Spell.

A Richfield Springs correspondent of the New York Herald writes: At the first grand ball of the season in the Earlington hotel here to-night Miss Abigail Spates, the daughter of a wealthy farmer of East Springfield township, had an exciting experience which tragically illustrates the folly of the hypnotic craze.

Since Miss Jennie Louise Howard, daughter of Vice-President Howard, of the Fourteenth street Bank of New York city, was accidentally hypnotized in an amateur performance of Trilby, the young people of the entire countryside and the hotel guests have talked of little else.

The 300 of Richfield assembled tonight at a ball in the Earlington hotel, the first general entertainment of the season. Only guests of the hotel and well-known cottagers were invited. Nobody recognized the beautiful girl who walked into the ballroom soon after the music began, on the arm of Starr Keller, a young Richfielder.

James Gascoine, president of the People's bank, of Brooklyn; P. J. Kennedy, a prominent New York publisher; Geo. W. Smith, adopted son of George T. Gilman, the millionaire tea importer, of New York; former Judge A. B. Woodward, Charles Morris Smith and Vice-President L. Beer, of the People's bank, who were members of the floor committee, asked the identity of this lady, who entered the main dining room and promenaded slowly around through the arcades of smilax and roses, but received no satisfaction.

The wealth and fashion of half a dozen great American cities were represented. Matrons and debutantes were eclipsed by the magnificent appearance of the unknown. She was tall and slender, her jet black hair contrasting with her deep blue eyes, which wore a strange look of abstraction as she walked through the groups of curious guests.

Mr. Keller, who was smiling when he brought his beautiful companion into the hall, looked worried as they passed the orchestra, which had been augmented by a number of pieces and was banked in ferns at the far end of the great hall. Just as they turned the band struck up Ben Bolt, set to waltz time, and in the dance, in which 200 pairs joined, the fair unknown was conspicuous for her grace and abandon.

The merriment was at its height, and among the ladies on the floor were Mrs. E. B. Bowers, Mrs. William Winans, Mrs. F. B. Ware and Mrs. Daniel Harbaugh, of New York; Mrs. D. T. Scott, of Pittsburg; Mrs. S. H. Avery, of Boston, and Mrs. Leonard B. Williams, of Chicago, when, as the music fell into a minor key and the strains of Au Claire de la Lune echoed plaintively down the hall, the unknown uttered a piercing shriek and fell at full length on the ballroom floor.

In an instant all was confusion at that end of the room and her apparently lifeless body was borne speedily out of the crowd. Dr. Borland, the postmaster, who is also a physician, was hurriedly called in and diagnosed the case as catalepsy. The girl's form was rigid, her pupils set and her arm, when extended, kept the position in which it was put.

Inquiry, however, developed the fact that the young girl was the victim of hypnotic suggestion, that she had never read Trilby, had never been to a ball before and actually had never waltzed before in her life; that her father, Joshua Spates, is one of the richest farmers of East Springfield, and that she had been persuaded to come to the Earlington ball, although she had never been out in evening dress in her life, by a gentleman who went on a fishing excursion in that vicinity recently, and whose name is not now given because criminal proceedings are to be begun against him at once.

It was he who introduced the farmer's daughter, who turned out to be the belle of the Earlington ball, to Starr Keller, her escort, and who, having hypnotized the girl early in the evening, drove her to a hotel in a closed carriage and borrowed the finery in which she was dressed.

When the facts became known in the ballroom great indignation was expressed. Otherwise the entertainment was unusually brilliant and successful.

—No appetite? Then do not try to force food down; but use the most scientific means for restoring tone to the stomach. How? Why, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and in a surprisingly short time your appetite will come again, and come to stay.

—The steamer Queen left for the South yesterday, the Alaska excursion season having closed.

"I TELL ALL MY FRIENDS."

A Lady of Shelburne, Ont., Permanently Cured of Indigestion After Using Two Bottles of South American Nervine —Glad to Let Everyone Know It,

MRS. A. V. GALBRAITH.

With indigestion it is not only that one suffers all imaginable torments, physical and mental, but more, perhaps, than anything else, an impaired digestion is the forerunner of countless ailments that in their course lead to the most serious consequences. Let the stomach get out of order and it may be said the whole system is diseased. When the digestive organs fail in their important functional duties, head and heart, mind and body are sick. These were the feelings of Mrs. Galbraith, wife of Mr. A. V. Galbraith, the well-known jeweller of Shelburne, Ont., before she had learned of the beneficent results to be gained by the use of South American Nervine Tonic. In so many words she said: "Life was becoming unbearable. I was so cranky I was really ashamed of myself. Nothing that I ate would agree with me; now it does not matter what I eat. I take enjoyment out of all my meals." Here are Mrs. Galbraith's words of testimony to South American Nervine, given over her own signature:

"Shelburne, Ont., March 27, 1894.

"I was for considerable time a sufferer from indigestion, experiencing all the misery and annoyance so common to this complaint. South American Nervine was recommended to me as a safe and effective remedy for all such cases. I used only two bottles, and am pleased to testify that these fully cured me, and I have had no indication of a return of the trouble since. I never fail to recommend the Nervine to all my friends troubled with indigestion or nervousness.

"MRS. A. V. GALBRAITH."

The testimony of this lady, given freely and voluntarily out of a full heart because of the benefits she experienced in her own person, have an echo in thousands of hearts all over the country. South American Nervine must cure, because it operates at once on the nerve centres. These nerve centres are the source from which emanates the life fluid that keeps all organs of the body in proper repair. Keep these nerve centres sound and disease is unknown. There is no trick in the business. Everything is very simple and common sense like. South American Nervine strengthens the digestive organs, tones up the liver, enriches the blood, is peculiarly efficacious in building up shattered and nervous constitutions. It never fails to give relief in one day.

POINTING TO VICTORY.

The Liberals could not hope to carry the Westmoreland seat; the adverse majority of 2,184 at the previous election was too heavy and the government had too many influences in its favor to be overcome, particularly in a bye-election. But the Liberals did enter into the contest with the hope of cutting down the big majority and by this means showing that the government had lost ground in the constituency. It would have been nothing surprising if they had failed even to make a serious reduction, owing to the great advantages enjoyed by their opponents. The issue, however, showed that their hope was well grounded, and the great measure of success they achieved may well give them confidence in the general election contest not far distant. It is significant of the present condition of the Tory government that the ministers and their friends were very dubious as to the outcome of the Westmoreland fight; the Maritime Province Conservative organs were plainly in a "blue funk" while the contest was going on. If the Conservatives cannot look with confidence to keeping hold of a constituency like Westmoreland, with such overwhelming odds in their favor, what riding in Canada could they count on carrying or keeping? What hope could they have of winning again at a general election? None at all. The result in Westmoreland was a severe defeat for them, only a little less severe than that in Antigonish, where they lost the seat held by their late leader. No success has been gained to counterbalance these two defeats, and the party managers are afraid to create other vacancies which their programme calls for. Dry rot and general demoralization have overtaken the party and left it in a poor state to face a general election. The results in Antigonish and Westmoreland plainly indicate the outcome of the general contest, wherein the Liberals will not be handicapped by the peculiar influences which the government can wield in bye-elections.

Speaking on the Manitoba school question the Conservative Toronto World says: "Manitoba is in every way competent to settle her own affairs, and taking our stand on the principle of provincial rights in this matter, we say the Dominion government and the Dominion parliament ought to avoid being a party to this attempt to force inferior schools on any portion of the people of Canada." And again:—"Of all futile things ever attempted, the most futile we can imagine would be an effort on the part of the parliament of Canada to dictate to the people of Manitoba how they should conduct their schools."

Halifax Chronicle: With the national policy burdens removed, and efficient administration of public affairs substituted for the political chaos and rottenness which have prevailed for more than a decade, the people of Canada would have a fair opportunity of making the most of their unrivalled resources, and genuine progress and prosperity would be the result. Indeed, the progress of Canada has been something remarkable, considering the manner in which she has been handicapped by national policy taxation and trade restriction, improvident increase of public debt, with the enormous waste of borrowed capital which it involved, extravagant increase in the public expenditure, and the paralyzing influence of a bungling and a boodling administration. If the people will sweep away these impediments to national progress Canada will go on and prosper.

The latest work from the pen of the learned Dr. Bourinot bears the title "How Canada is Governed." It is needless to say that the author treats his subject ably; the many Canadians who have acquaintance with his earlier works will find their favorable expectations in regard to this one fulfilled. Commencing with an introductory chapter in which are explained the terms relating to government, the work proceeds to sketch the political growth of Canada and give an outline of her history. The second part relates to the imperial government and its control over this country. Part 3 is devoted to the Dominion government and its powers—government being always understood to cover the widest ground. Provincial, municipal, school and territorial governments are taken up in their succeeding parts, and a separate chapter is devoted to "The Duties and Responsibilities of Canadian Citizens,"—in regard to which only too many Canadian citizens need instruction. An appendix, giving the B. N. A. act and amending acts, and a copious analytical index are not the least useful features of the book. The publishers are the Copp, Clarke Co., Limited, of Toronto, and the book is for sale here by R. Jamieson.

OUT OF GEAR.

Has W. W. Ogilvie been informed by telegraph that during his absence in the Northwest the National Policy has got out of gear and allowed Canadian wheat prices to get below the American level? We are sure that when he hears this he will abandon his present occupation of sitting up at night watching the thermometer and come east to see about it.

Last spring wheat was quoted from 12c. to 15c. higher in Canada than in the United States, and Mr. Ogilvie wrote a letter with his own hand announcing that the N. P. had done this thing, and that the Grits who said otherwise lied, as was their habit. At the time the Herald was cruel enough to say that as the rise in prices took place when the farmers had no wheat and Mr. Ogilvie had much, there might be a connection between the two facts; and it intimated further than when the condition changed the prices might change as well.

This very thing has come to pass, no doubt against Mr. Ogilvie's desire. Wheat to-day is quoted at a higher price in Buffalo than in Toronto. Let Mr. Ogilvie come home and stop this. If the N. P. can make Canadian wheat worth 15c. per bushel more than American wheat in June, when Mr. Ogilvie has wheat or its equivalent in flour to sell, it ought to be able to do as much in September or October, when Mr. Ogilvie is a buyer and not a seller. We expect Mr. Ogilvie to see that it does. We look to him to write another letter with his own hand announcing his determination to pay for all wheat offered fifteen cents more than the price paid in competing American points.

If he should not do this, if he should take a base advantage of this slip on the part of the N. P., and buy wheat for less than the American price, it might appear to some people that last spring the Grits were telling the truth.—Montreal Herald.

WOOD PAVEMENTS.

An Experiment in Paris That May Be of Value to Victoria.

Considerable difference of opinion being found to exist among experts as to the best kind of wood for use in street paving, the Paris municipality has undertaken an experiment which will be watched with interest. The Faubourg Montmartre, one of the great arteries of the French capital, along which particularly heavy traffic passes all day long, is being repaired with no fewer than six different kinds of wood. These are pitch pine, pine from the great swampy district in the south of France called the Landes, the inhabitants of which have to walk about on high stilts, teak, red karri, box, and a particularly hard wood from Borneo. Each of these materials has particular qualities of its own, such as impenetrability, non-slipping surface, and so forth. From time to time a committee of experts will visit the place, and draw up a report as to the substance which best stands the rough wear and tear.

BUSH FIRES AT NANAIMO.

Residential and Other Property Constantly Threatened.

Nanaimo, Aug. 29.—The heat from the surrounding bush fires was felt very keenly yesterday, and to-day it is impossible to distinguish objects at a distance of 500 yards. At Northfield men are employed at 50 cents an hour to keep the flames from approaching the powder works, and a constant guard is kept to prevent the fire from spreading to the city. A report is circulated this morning that the people residing near No. 5 mine had to leave their homes last night but this has not yet been verified. There is grave danger that the fire may spread to Haslam's saw mill, as at present it is in close proximity.

At a recent meeting of the creditors of the Nanaimo Equitable Pioneer Society, Limited, held on the 15th instant, says the Free Press, a statement was presented showing total liabilities of $57,453.15, of which $11,453.32 was to the trade. Of the business assets their stock in trade represents $31,903, and realty more than sufficient to secure the settlement arrived at, which is as follows: 25 per cent. cash 30 days from meeting; balance equally divided on notes at three, six and nine months. The following were appointed trustees or inspectors of the estate and to hold the deeds of the property as collateral security: A. R. Johnston, Nanaimo; J. H. Todd, A. C. Flumerfelt and William Wilson, Victoria.

Capt. Manson, J.P., who came down from Cortez Island last Sunday, brings news of the disappearance of a logger named M. Norman, who left Land's for his camp 30 miles away the previous Tuesday, and has not been heard of since. His boat was known to be unseaworthy and it is feared that he is drowned. A search of more than two days' duration has been made along the coast without success.

The labor day celebration on Monday bids fair to excel anything of the kind ever held in Nanaimo before. Not only is great interest evinced in the undertaking locally, but from the other cities of the province come promises of assistance and participation. There will be a big attendance from Victoria. The Stone Cutters' Union of that city are arranging for an excursion, which there is every reason to believe will be well patronized, and in addition there will be delegations from other cities of the province. An elaborate programme has been arranged.

Sam Fox is down from China Creek. He arrived in town last evening, having walked the entire distance. Fox reports that work on the Alberni ore of the Mineral Creek Mining Company's claims is progressing satisfactorily. China Creek is becoming quite a busy camp and will soon rank in importance among the best known on the mainland.

UNDER TERRIBLE PRESSURE.

Grave Consequences of Diving One Hundred and Sixty Feet.

The steamer Alfonso XII., having on board ten boxes of gold coin, each box worth $50,000, struck on a rock and sank at Grand Canary while on the voyage from Cadiz to Havana in 1886.

It was ascertained that the specie was at a depth of 26.23 fathoms—160 feet—and grave doubts were entertained of the possibility of any diver being able to withstand the tremendous pressure incidental to such a depth, viz., sixty-seven pounds to every superficial square inch of his body.

Experiments at this depth were made off Dartmouth and two men, Lambert and Tessier, were found equal to the perilous task, dresses having been prepared which would remain water-tight at this great depth.

An expedition was sent out by the Marine Insurance Company, the divers to receive a reward of 5 per cent. or $2,500 on each box recovered. Lambert got up seven and Tessier two. So terrible was the pressure that neither man could stay below for more than a few minutes, and Lambert soon after his return suffered from chronic paralysis of the bowels, by which he was in many respects reduced to the hopeless condition of a babe in the cradle. Probably a tightly sealed kettle sent down empty to the same depth would have been crushed flat.

As it was the divers only succeeded in finding nine boxes out of ten, $50,000 thus remaining below.

A subsequent expedition went in search of this box, and the diver, after being down twenty minutes, was hauled up only to die. Not a whit discouraged, another expedition went out with two divers from Germany.

The first of these was promptly hauled up half dead, only to be sent ashore to the hospital raving mad; the other went down, but returned, declaring that no box was there. Whether he really got so far as the lazarette from which the boxes were taken is open to doubt. The pressure at such depths must be positively crushing.

In the accounts of one of the deep-sea dredging expeditions it is mentioned that when the trawl was raised from a great depth the pressure proved to have been such as to crush together the wood of the trawl beam so that the knots started out of it.—Boston Traveler.

KEPT HER WORD.

A Detective's Confidence in a Woman Prisoner not Misplaced.

On Tuesday among the passengers on a river steamer coming up from Boulogne-sur-Seine to Paris was (says a correspondent there) Detective Capiaumont, having in charge a woman named Decker, sentenced to ten days' imprisonment for insulting a policeman. As the boat was passing under the Concorde Bridge a man jumped off the bridge. While a life-buoy was being thrown from the boat the detective, a first rate swimmer, remarked to his prisoner that if he were alone he would jump overboard and save the drowning man. Madame Decker urged him to attempt the rescue, giving him her word that she would not attempt to escape. The detective at once jumped into the water, and grasped the would-be suicide by his clothes, and was about to swim ashore when an ill directed life-buoy struck him and made him lose his hold. The detective dived several times, but in vain, and was taken back on board on the verge of exhaustion, the body being found several hours later. On reaching the landing stage the detective found his prisoner waiting for him with his coat and the warrant of arrest. She was taken to the Prefect, who, moved by her loyalty to her pledged word, set her free, informing her how she could get a second trial (the first having been by default), and promising meanwhile to endeavor to get her a free pardon. The detective will be awarded a medal.

PRODUCTS OF THE SAHARA.

The Big Desert Supports Many Living Creatures.

"The Sahara," says the Revue Française, "has the reputation of being an entirely sterile desert, uninhabited and uninhabitable. If this assertion is well founded in many cases, it is, nevertheless, not true everywhere, and even outside the oases, the Sahara presents some resources, not very considerable, it is true, but such as are greatly appreciated by the pastoral peoples that traverse it. According to Mr. Kunckell, of Herculais, there are found at every step in the sand regions mounds surmounted by plants whose roots can be used for fuel. Masses of tarmarinds and gum acacias are frequent, especially in beds of old water courses, where roam beasts of various kinds. In the mineralized waters of the desert are found water turtles, etc.

But what rehabilitates the Sahara a little is the presence during the winter season of numerous flocks of animals. In 1892 more than 9,000,000 sheep wintered in the Algerian Sahara, paying a duty of 1,763,000 francs ($352,000). These sheep were worth 20 francs apiece, or in all $175,000,000. The Sahara nourishes also 2,000,000 goats and 200,000 camels, paying a duty of a million. In the oases palms, citrons, apricots, etc., abound. There are cultivated also onions, pimentos, and various leguminous vegetables. The oases contain 1,500,000 date palms, on which the duty is 500,000 francs. The product of a date tree varies from eight to ten francs; these of the desert give about 15,000,000 a year."

WILL BE WISER NEXT TIME.

A Jeweler Who Was Swindled by Very Clever Sharpers.

One day a flashily attired man entered a jeweler's shop in London and asked the jeweler to show him some watches, saying he was going to South America in a few days and wanted one thousand pounds worth of watches as a speculation. The jeweler during the interview became convinced that he was dealing with a suspicious character, and when at last the goods were selected and a thousand pound note tendered in payment, the jeweler felt sure that his suspicions were correct.

In the meantime he sent a clerk to the bank to see if the note was good. Upon the return of the latter he was astonished to find that it was.

As the man was about to leave with his package, in came another man of similar loud attire, who familiarly greeted the first one, and asked him what he was doing there. Upon repeating the story which he had told the jeweler the new arrival informed his friend that he was there for the same purpose.

The jeweler was now more firmly convinced that some sharp trick was to be played upon him, and was on his mettle.

The new comer, having secured what he wanted, tendered a thousand pound note, which upon being sent to the bank was also found good. The suspicious pair, with their goods, were about to leave the shop, when a policeman, tremendously excited, rushed in, exclaiming, "Bill Sharp and Andy Winters, I've got you now!" and before they could realize it he had slipped handcuffs on them. Turning to the jeweler, who, intensely delighted to find that his suspicions were confirmed, was only too glad to furnish all information possible, he said: "These two men are wanted for breaking into Barker Bros.'s house last night and stealing two thousand pound notes, numbered 57,123 and 57,273." The notes proved to be the stolen ones. The officer then told the jeweler to give him the notes and the packages as evidence, and to meet him at once at the police station to give his testimony. The trio disappeared in a cab, and the jeweler, hastening to the police station, anxious to give his testimony and secure their conviction, found to his dismay that no such parties had arrived, and that he was the victim of a very clever swindle, the three cracks having escaped.—Life's Calendar.

LOCAL NEWS.

—New line of pocket cutlery just opened at Fox's, 78 Government street. Shaving outfits a specialty, guaranteed.

—The cyclists' social concert at the Mount Baker Hotel will take place a week from to-day. Special car service is promised and admission will be by invitation only.

—There was a well attended and enjoyable parlor concert last evening at Stratford Villa, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Noah Shakespeare. The funds go to the Centennial Methodist church.

—Labor Day, which occurs on Monday next, has been declared a public holiday by His Worship Mayor Teague. The matter was called up in the city council on Monday night by Ald. Williams, and not Ald. Wilson, as the Times stated.

—There will be a special meeting of the B. C. Natural History Society at the Provincial Library this evening. Prof. Prince, Dominion fishery commissioner, will be present and will deliver an address on the subject of "Some new and interesting features in young fishes."

—Thomas J. Field and Miss Emily Brown, both of Victoria, were united in marriage last evening. The ceremony was performed at Metropolitan Methodist church and Rev. J. P. Hicks officiated. The couple were attended by Miss Mary L. Brown, sister of the bride, and William T. Scott.

—Mrs. E. A. Verrinder, Mrs. Fox and the children who were thrown from a carriage on the Gorge road yesterday were all more or less badly bruised. Mrs. Verrinder will be confined to the house for several weeks. Her little daughter had one of her arms broken and the rest of the party are suffering from bruises and the shock.

—There was a good sized crowd at the entertainment and dance given last evening by the Daughters of England, at their hall on View street. The programme was an excellent one, Edgar Fawcett, a boy who is developing into an excellent violinist, appearing in addition to those already named. The dance after the concert was also greatly enjoyed.

—Even the most skeptical among the large audience present in A. O. U. W. Hall last evening must have gone home with a bit of confidence in the "Sequah" remedies. Customs Officer Franklin, who for the past ten years has been a sufferer from rheumatism, was treated by the wonderful "Sequah" and afterwards announced his perfect freedom from all pain. Mr. Wallace Biddle gave a recital which was much appreciated, and will be heard on future occasions at "Sequah's" lectures.

Montreal, Aug. 20.—In the action brought against L. H. Boisseau & Co. for $5,000 damages for selling and offering for sale Textile Buckskin as Fibre Chamois, the Hon. Mr. Justice Tellier of the Superior Court has rendered judgment upon the company's application for a temporary injunction, and has restrained the defendant's clerks, agents, etc., from selling Textile Buckskin or any other imitation of Fibre Chamois as Fibre Chamois.

—William McGirr, of Vancouver, and Miss Jean Armstrong, of this city, were united in marriage last evening. The home of the bride's uncle, Mr. Daniel McLaughlin, 18 St. Louis street, was the scene of the ceremony, and Rev. A. B. Winchester officiated. Miss M. Cathcart was bridesmaid and Mr. W. H. Wood, of the Vancouver News-Advertiser, best man. The wedding was a quiet one, only a few friends being present. Mr. and Mrs. McGirr left on the Charmer for Vancouver, where they will reside. Mr. McGirr is purser of the steamer Catch.

—There is going to be a great competition at the Fall Show for home made bread. The prizes offered are well worth striving for, and are as follows: Messrs. G. Powell & Co., a Duchess Oxford range, for the best loaf of bread made on the grounds from Canadian flour; Messrs Speed Bros., five pound box of tea, for the second best; Messrs. Hall, Ross & Co., $10 for the best loaf of bread made from the Rolling Mills flour; Albion Iron Works, a Palor heating stove, for the best loaf of bread baked on the grounds in one of the Victoria ranges; R. P. Rithet & Co., Ltd., one barrel of Columbia flour as a second prize. All information can be obtained from the secretary.

—The visiting lumbermen returned to the Sound this morning.

—The Slater party, who are touring the world on the yacht Eleanor, have engaged rooms at the Driard.

—Collier Wellington will go on the Marine ways at Esquimalt as soon as the work on the yacht Eleanor has been completed.

—Veri Soria, the Greek fisherman summoned for assaulting Ah My and Li Chung, two Chinese fish peddlers, on the water front on Sunday, failed to appear when his name was called in police court this morning and a warrant for his arrest was ordered issued. It is probable that he did not care to face the music.

—Louis Lerose was convicted in police court this morning of being found on the Songhees Indian reserve with liquor in his possession and fined $50 or in default a month's imprisonment. Lerose is a half breed and was arrested yesterday by Special Constable Carroll. He will probably serve the sentence offered as an alternative.

—Rev. Mr. Bushnell, of Tacoma, a Congregational minister, will preach two sermons here on Sunday to the people of that denomination. Temperance Hall has been secured for the occasion and the hours of service will be 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. A full attendance of all interested in the movement to establish a church here is desired, as it is quite probable that a call will be extended to Rev. Mr. Bushnell.

—Elaborate preparations have been made for the ball to be given this evening in the sail loft of the Dockyard by Admiral Stephenson and the officers of H. M. ships. The loft has been handsomely decorated and will be lighted by electricity, a cable having been stretched from the flagship for the purpose. Included in the decorations are two immense pyramids of ice, profusely decorated, which will make the ballroom cool for the dancers. Upwards of 400 invitations have been issued.

—The B. C. B. G. A. Band will play its second afternoon concert at Beacon Hill on Sunday next. The programme is to be a good one, and among the numbers will be the long expected "Musical Critic's Dream." This piece is entirely different from all other descriptive music as it depends entirely upon the music for its comedy. All other descriptive and characteristic pieces depend on singing, shouting, pistol shots, clogs, or sand blocks for their effects, but these are all absent from the "Musical Critic's Dream." It is high class music and at the same time humorous.

—The only doubtful element about the open air concert and water carnival at the Gorge last evening—the weather—proved perfectly satisfactory, and the affair was a great success. The attendance was very large, for besides the people carried there by between 200 and 300 boats and canoes many drove up. The programme of music by the Arion club, as previously announced, was carried out, and Leader W. Greig and his men were compelled to respond to several encores. The plan of singing from a platform on the shore is a decided improvement over the old method of using a barge. Many of the boats were illuminated and prettily decorated and the effect was most attractive. On the way home the American steam yacht Eleanor was serenaded and the compliment acknowledged with cheers and the firing of rockets.

—A short meeting of the board of directors of the Jubilee Hospital was held last evening. The resignation of Dr. McKechnie as pathologist of the hospital, was accepted with regrets. A proposition from the Phillips Sanitary Grate company to heat the hospital was laid on the table. The treasurer's monthly statement showed that the bills for July amounted to $1390, and the salary list for August, $559. The amounts were ordered paid. The chairman exhibited a form used in the London hospitals to show concisely the financial statement. The form having been sent by Mr. Helmcken it was laid over until his return. On motion of Mr. Yates it was decided that the groceries and meat should be delivered at the hospital between ten and twelve each day. Messrs. G. Byrnes, T. Shotbolt and W. J. Dwyer were appointed a committee to arrange for the organization of the medical staff to call them together when meetings are necessary. On motion of Mr. Byrnes it was decided to ask the medical staff for their opinion as to the best site for an operating room.

—Andrew Lang has received a letter from Captain Ferry on the schooner Mary Ellen, written at Unalaska on July 30. In it he states that he had considerable trouble with his Indians through sickness and that two of them died at sea. He had fine weather on the Japanese coast, but at no time were his men well enough to lower every canoe together. The Indians who died were Alberni Joe and John Taylor of Port Simpson, and they passed away on July 23 and 24 respectively while on the way to Unalaska. Victor Jacobsen built a shack on the beach at Unalaska and it will be the habitation until the close of the season of two sick Indians from the Otto and two from the Mary Ellen. Captain Ferry also states that the Otto went north to Copper Islands after the season in Japan but only got 29 skins there, and then ran across to Unalaska to enter the sea with the rest of the fleet. He reports the following catches, some of which are new and some old: Vera, 808; Mary Ellen, 854; Agnes Macdonald, 745; Boringer, 924; City of San Diego, 450; Pioneer, 1001; Viva, 475; Borealis, 760; Sea Lion, 610; Arietas, 750 and Paint, 1206.

PREVOST STILL MISSING.

Lots of Rumors, but Nothing Definite Known About His Whereabouts.

Did Not Go on the Kingston Friday Night, as the Boat Was Closely Watched.

What little astonishment there was at the disappearance of Registrar Prevost, has given way to wonder at the action of the government in allowing Prevost to remain in office after it was known that he had been acting dishonestly, using public money for private purposes. There is no use speculating on the amount of his defalcations as registrar, as nothing will be known for some time the books and data in connection with the office being in a terribly muddled condition. As to the condition of the estates of which he was receiver or administrator, the lawyers interested positively decline to discuss them, and although there are lots of rumors, neither a denial nor a confimation of them can be obtained.

The whereabouts of Prevost is as much a mystery as it was on Monday, when the Times first intimated that he had gone. It can be positively stated however, that he did not leave the city by the Kingston on Friday evening. Deputy Sheriff Siddall was looking for him on Friday and besides searching the Kingston, remained on board till she left for the Sound. He will not say why he was looking for Prevost, but it can easily be guessed that he intended to detain him by serving the writ of attachment issued in the Hirst case. The police have run down clue after clue, only to find that there was no foundation for them. They have been told by men who should know Prevost and whose veracity is well known, that they saw the missing man on the street yesterday, and others are willing to swear that he was not here. Still others say that they know that he went north on Sunday morning's train, while Mr. Brown, the ticket agent, who knows Prevost well, is positive that he did not sell him a ticket on Sunday morning, and is almost certain from what he has learned that Prevost did not go up on that train. Then where is Prevost? Many who were known to be his friends state that they believe he is not far from Victoria.

Hon. Mr. Justice Crease yesterday appointed Wm. Monteith administrator of the Pratt estate in the place of J. C. Prevost, who a few weeks ago asked to be relieved of his duties. The accounts in the estate are said to be perfectly correct.

—J. W. Keller, the successful tender for pipes, takes exception on several grounds to the complaint that the contract was not awarded to a Victoria company. In the first place Mr. Keller says he imports pipes from Great Britain, San Francisco and Seattle—in this particular instance from the latter place because there is not time to bring it from Great Britain. The contract comes to nearly $2,000 and the difference, his being the lowest tender, was nearly $100. A short time ago when tenders were invited for a supply of pipe, the bid of the local company was lower that the one put in by Mr. Keller, and the latter thinks there is no ground for a protest in either case, as the lowest tenderer was awarded the contract in each instance. Why, he asks, should tenders be invited if the lowest tender—other conditions of the sale being satisfactory to the council—is to be passed over? Again, he claims that being a resident, and as this business of importing gives employment to many men and ships, there is no loss to the city; on the contrary, he holds there is a distinct gain in this particular transaction in the saving effected and in the quality of the pipes furnished.

—A Glasgow paper has the following remarks in regard to the Bank of B.C.: "The recent unsatisfactory state of the lumber trade has doubtless had much to do with the heavy reduction in the distribution just announced by the Bank of British Columbia for the last six months. The bank appears to have done a larger business, but profits have fallen off very materially. As compared with the figures of June, 1894, current and deposit amounts have increased by over £100,000. On the other hand the reserve fund has fallen from £275,000 to £235,000, and the net profits, which in June, 1894, were £27,922, are now returned at £13,782 only. The bank therefore pays a dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum only, as compared with 6 per cent. a year ago, besides which shareholders then received as well a bonus of 1 per cent. In other words the bank distributed £24,000 among its shareholders for the half year ending June 30, 1894, and now will distribute £15,000 only. The shares have not moved much, for at 21½ they stand above the lowest. Early in the year they were dealt in at 20½, and at one time in 1894 they stood at well over 23.

—The steam yacht Eleanor, carrying the Slater party, arrived from Alaska last evening after a very pleasant trip. Her officers cannot understand how the rumor got around that she was aground in Glacier Bay. She was never at any time in any danger, let alone being aground. The weather was moist at times, but never stormy. Many stops were made along the Alaskan and British Columbian coasts. The Eleanor resumed her anchorage in James Bay last night but at 11 o'clock this morning she was taken around to Esquimalt by Pilot Backnam to go on the marine railway. She needs cleaning and repainting and will be in the dock for two days. It is the intention to remain here for several days this trip, and Mr. Slater and his guests intend to see the place thoroughly.

—The excursion by the steamer Joan on Saturday in aid of the orphanage should not be overlooked by the charitable people of Victoria. The committee having, through the kindness of Mr. Jas. Dunsmuir and other friends, secured all the accessories of the outing without cost, the whole of the gross proceeds go direct into the funds of the institution. Although, unfortunately, other attractions have since been arranged for that day it should not be forgotten that the orphans were early in the field and had thoughtfully changed the day of their outing in order not to interfere with the Scotch picnic last Saturday. It is hoped, therefore, that those whose other engagements will prevent their accompanying the excursionists, will buy a ticket, the 50 cents for which will be a direct gift to an institution now supporting 60 little ones without any assistance from either the government or civic authorities.

—Mr. M. Baker, of the firm of R. Baker & Son, has returned from a visit to the Fraser valley. "There will be no American hay and very little American grain brought here this season," said Mr. Baker. "We have made arrangements with the Fraser Valley farmers to ship all their produce here and sell it at such prices as will practically shut out the American goods. This year's hay crop, both as to quantity and quality is the best I have seen in twenty years, and the farmers will be able to supply this and other cities and have a surplus. They can also supply all the oats that are required and have nearly enough potatoes to keep the market supplied.

—The fire department was out twice yesterday, and both times for brush fires. The first was on Princess avenue at 4:30 o'clock, and was trivial; and the other at Cedar Hill at 8. At the latter place a big brush fire was burning, and when the firemen, called by telephone, arrived it was within 15 feet of St. Luke's church. The chemical was used to advantage and Chief Deasy suggested that the residents clear a trench to stop the fire. When all the property was out of danger the firemen left with orders to be sent for again if the fire gained ground.

Chief Sheppard has received a letter from Chief Richards, of Sturgis, S. D., inquiring as to the whereabouts of Jas. Brennan, a miner, described as being between 40 and 50 years old, with sandy moustache and chin whiskers. His right hand is badly disfigured as the result of an accident some years ago. The reason he is sought is not stated, but an attempt will be made to locate him. Anyone knowing him will confer a favor by writing to Chief Sheppard.

—The funeral of the late William H. Nichols will take place to-morrow from the residence of His Worship Mayor Teague, Cook street and Caledonia ave. The cortege will leave the house at 2 o'clock and proceed to Metropolitan Methodist church, where at 2:30 o'clock services will be conducted.

—The Times is requested to state that Their Excellencies the Governor-General and the Countess of Aberdeen will be pleased if any of their invited guests who have children old enough to be present on such occasions will bring them to the garden party at Government House on Saturday, the 31st instant.

—Her Excellency The Countess of Aberdeen wishes to intimate that she will be happy to receive the members of the executive of the local Council of Women of Victoria at the garden party on Saturday 31st instant.

—All members of the Juvenile Opera Company are requested to call at Mrs. Lang's on Saturday afternoon.

—The directors of the Agricultural Association meet to-night at the City Hall.

THE EMPRESS EUGENIE.

How She Brought About a Reform in a French Women's Prison.

The Empress Eugenie has been busying herself purchasing bamboo furniture for her villa at Cape Martin. It appears that the Empress has not been the sufferer by the Baring crash that she was said to be, but her entourage is not sorry for it to be reported that she had heavy losses. Relatives, connections, and courtiers, who disappeared on September 4, long fancied they had claims on her purse. One of the saddest facts connected with her strange career, is that when the fall of the empire was approaching she awoke to a feeling that she had not seized opportunities to play a beneficent part on the throne. After the recovery of the Prince Imperial from a painful hip-joint affection, she began to think of all the misery that was hidden under the folds of the tricolor. The Archbishop of Paris, Darboy, encouraged what seemed to him a charitable vocation. She visited the cholera wards of the Amiens and Paris hospitals, the prison for juveniles, the St. Lazare, where women work out sentences passed by correctional judges. The circumstances under which the Empress went there have been related by Mlle. da Grandpre, the niece of the prison chaplain, who took the Empress over the prison.

Mlle. de Grandpre had been called by her uncle, who was aged and in failing health, to come and stay with him as housekeeper, three years before she guided Eugenie through St. Lazare. The Abbe's home was in the prison. He encouraged his niece to busy herself with the prisoners—a work to which she has devoted herself with as much disinterested charity as good judgment for more than 30 years. In 1867 penitentiary congresses were being held at the Universal exposition. She thought the time propitious for airing, through the papers, a grievance of her proteges. It was at once a small and a great matter. What she wanted to call attention to was the narrowness of the benches on which the prisoners were kept seated for ten hours a day when busy at their task. The seats were mere rails, and not more than three inches wide. The prefecture of the police and the ministry of the interior were furious at what De Villemessant, and others following him, said about the benches. The Empress was interested in the controversy. She took up the female prisoners' grievance, and brought it before the council of ministers, which she used to attend as prospective regent. The minister whom the benches concerned, promised alterations, but nothing was done.

At length the Empress lost patience at this inertia. To put her off it was proposed to name a committee of inquiry, which in due time would send up a report. "How many years might they require? The best course is for me to go myself. It will be easy to sit for a quarter of an hour on one of the benches." The minister thought to frighten her by advising her to go well protected against a crowd of Maenads, ribald in speech and unruly in their tempers. She was not to be put off, declined to have a guard of Sisters of Charity, and did not mention on what day she would go on her errand of mercy. Her carriage drove up one morning at the door of St. Lazare. An equerry who was to stay in the parlor asked to see the governor and told him what illustrious visitors had arrived to inspect the penitentiary. That official thought a woman alone was competent to take the Empress round and explain to her what she wanted to know. He rushed to the chaplain's lodgings and called on Mlle. de Grandpre, who was engaged in cooking, and not to keep the Empress waiting by changing her dress. The priest's niece was in a plain stuff dressing gown. She understood that politeness required her to keep it on, and leaving her uncle's lunch on the stove, proceeded to receive her Imperial Majesty.

Mlle. de Grandpre has the gift of simple eloquence. Knowing exactly where the shoe pinched, she was able to give much information about the Gehenna of St. Lazare in terms that set the Empress sobbing. She knew the story of every prisoner's life. Eugenie and the Grand Duchess Mary of Russia, the Emperor's cousin, sat for twenty minutes engaged at a manual task on one of the narrow forms. Both agreed that they were instruments of torture. They expressed horror at the pathological consequences, as explained to them, of ten hours a day on such benches. At the next ministerial council the Empress gave the minister of the interior a piece of her mind, when he saw that the cost of providing new benches would, he feared, weigh too heavily on his budget. She carried the point. A carpenter was sent to Mlle de Grandpre, with planks, to know what breadth they should be cut. The reform was a trifling one; but it turned the police department and the prisons department at the ministry of the interior against the Empress. There is no more arrogant or infallible government than a government by clerks. Attacks were secretly got up against the Empress by the department with which she had "meddled." The police sent all the slanders they could pick up to the opposition papers. Their brethren of the public safety department helped them, and the other bureaus at the home ministry made common cause by protecting sinning journalists.

To-day, Mlle. de Grandpre says that the officials of the republic are much less infallible in their own eyes than those of the Empire, and do not resent efforts to reform. On the whole they are a great improvement. Still, they are wooden. She regrets that the republic does not give some very commanding situation to a woman, who would go, like the Empress, to jails to judge for herself, instead of sending a wooden committee of inquiry. A woman, at any rate ought to be placed over all the penitentiaries for women, men not understanding women's affairs.—London Truth.

ELECTRICITY FROM COAL.

A Notable Electric Battery Devised by a German Expert.

A new electric battery of a very interesting sort has been devised by Dr. Borchers, of Driesburg, in Germany, its chemical peculiarity being that the current is generated, not by the solution of metal, by the conversion of hydro-carbons and carbonic oxide into carbonic acid. As this is practically the same reaction that takes place in burning coal, the useful energy derived from the oxidation of a given weight of carbon in the battery can be directly compared with the effect of burning coals or gas to drive a steam engine. It is well known that a steam engine utilizes about 12 per cent. under the most favorable circumstances of the theoretical energy produced by the oxidation in the boiler furnaces of the coal used to drive it; and a good gas engine utilizes about 20 per cent.; while Borchers' battery is said to have delivered at times, in available form, 38 per cent. of the energy liberated by the consumption of carbon in it, and at no time to have delivered less than 26 per cent. It would be curious if the oxidation of carbon in the wet way, in a battery, should give more than three times as much power per pound of coal consumed as burning it in a boiler furnace; but this is just what is claimed for the new battery, and it is obvious that if the claim is sustained it will not be long before steam boilers are abandoned and power derived entirely from batteries and distributed through wires and electric motors to persons desiring to use it.—Chicago Tribune.

THE ROMAN LEGIONARY.

An Early Example of the Trained and Hardened Soldier.

The Roman legionary is a personage of remarkable interest. He is indeed the first soldier whom we seem to recognize as such; a disciplined man of the highest training, with pride in himself, confidence in his leaders, and considerable esprit de corps; in fact a warrior whom the modern soldier can take to his heart. There were legions and legions, of course, as in modern armies there are regiments and regiments; some indeed, like the famous Tenth, enjoyed even a nickname, "The Larks." (Alauda.) The men if we are to believe Vegetius, suffering from the same weaknesses, could be raised by the same means to the same excellence as the veterans of the Peninsular war. As to the lighter moods of the Roman legionary, are they not immortalized in the name of a Roman emperor?

Tacitus tells us how Germanicus, always a popular general, having had a son born to him in the camp, dressed the lad like a little soldier, complete even to his boots, (caliga) in the hope of pleasing his men. The men of course made a pet of him, and called him Caligula or Little Boots, and it is by this camp nickname of Little Boots that Claudius, son of Germanicus, lives in history to this day. It is a curious example of the persistence in the nature of fighting men. Cochrane's rough Chilean sailors dressed up his five-year-old son as a tiny midshipman, and made a pet of him in the same way.—Macmillan's Magazine.

SUPERINTENDENT NEELE RETIRES.

He Was For 34 Years Head of the London & N. W. Railway.

Mr. George F. Neele, superintendent of the London & Northwestern railway company, of England, has retired from that position, which he has ably filled for the past 34 years. He has been closely identified with railway work for a period of over 48 years, and has always been a conspicuous figure in the transportation interests of the mother land. On two occasions he was chosen chairman for the year of the Railway Clearing House Superintendents' Conference, and in the work of the conference took an important part. His position naturally brought him in close contact with exalted passengers, and he has made no fewer than 122 journeys with the Royal Family. In the final one, in June last, Her Majesty personally expressed her deep regret at his impending retirement from the service of the company and her full appreciation of his constant attentions to herself and the members of the Royal Family during the numerous journeys they have made for so many years past over this line. He was also made the recipient of a handsome gift, on which was a flattering superscription by Her Majesty. Mr. Neele is not unknown in Canada and the United States, having visited both countries, in which he made many warm friends, especially among railway officials. Full of years and honors, his retirement from the responsible position he has filled so ably is accompanied by the best wishes of his subordinates, with whom he was deservedly popular, and by the deep regrets of the directors of the great railway company of which he was an efficient and loyal servant.

IN LAVA LANDS.

Notes of the Excursion to Hawaii, by Miss Cameron.

THE BERNICE BISHOP MUSEUM.

The day of our arrival in Honolulu we called upon two old Victorians, Mr. and Mrs. J. Batchelor, who with their two sons have made their home there. After talking over old times with them we started off for the dock to see the Miowera start on her way to Australia. To this end we took a short (?) cut and found ourselves soon in the rear of many little laundries whose back premises contained a queer mixture of drying clothes, cocoanut palms, ducks, chickens, Japs, young Hawaiians and choice pieces of living China, assorted sizes, with here and there a Portuguese family. As we picked our way in and out of the labyrinth we concluded that we had found at last the ideal field wherein the Theosophist may study "The Universal Brotherhood of Man." At the dock all was life and animation. The departure of an ocean steamer is a great event, and all Honolulu turns out to do it honor.

Here we saw for the first time the native flower-women twining leis or floral wreaths. The making and wearing of these garlands are customs universal throughout the islands. To get the needed flowers the women take long journeys inland up the palis or mountain gorges, coming down laden with vines, ferns and gorgeous blossoms. The flowers are pulled from their stems and closely threaded on strings till a compact cable is formed, and this sweetly redolent string is a leis, the emblem of the departing voyager of love, kindliness and all good wishes. The flowers most in vogue for these decorations are carnations and plumeria, a cream white flower with a subtle perfume much like the tuberose. Every outward bound passenger wore one or more of these leis, whilst one well known clergyman, a Mormon Father, was literally laden with them. They were wound thickly round his hat, they girdled him from shoulder to waist and hung from his neck in festoons. Flower leis are a necessary part of the native costume; hats and shoes are matters of taste, the wearing of them a custom more honored in the breach than in the observance, but the leis must be worn if the native is to maintain his claim to respectability. When the fresh flowers are not to be had, their place is supplied by leis made of more enduring material such as shells, seeds or the tips of peacock feathers.

Before leaving the hotel, we had arrayed ourselves in white dresses and were bidding a touching farewell to our fellow travellers and feeling particularly cool, clean and comfortable when without a moment's warning we heard a hissing sound and found ourselves drenched from a warm water escape-pipe of the Miowera. It was one of those practical jokes which we endure with outward smiles for appearance's sake. The Honolulu Star made a touching reference to the incident, saying that it was the work of a "miscreant" and that such practices should be stopped. We had our own idea regarding the "miscreant," and rather strongly suspected that he resented our cool and clean appearance as he contrasted it with that of the week before aboard ship. Nothing in Honolulu remains damp long. In a few moments we were dried off and none the worse.

The small Kanakas reap a nickel harvest when ocean vessels enter or leave port. They swim around the ship bobbing up between it and the dock, yelling "Nickel! Nickel!" As soon as a coin is thrown into the water, the whole crowd of brown bodies disappear, and before you have time to think almost, up pops the successful small boy with the coin between his teeth, his black eyes snapping with triumph and his whole body one wriggle of excitement. A coin thrown flat is invariably caught long before it reaches bottom, one thrown to cut the water with its edge is sometimes lost in the mud, that is, if it is thrown with some force. The great peculiarity of their diving is that they go always feet first. You see thirty or forty heads and shoulders as their owners "tread water" and implore your nickels, then one coin causes a dissolving view, down go shoulders, necks, smiling faces, like a shot, and without a splash they disappear from view. These little Kanakas are truly adepts in swimming and diving; their dexterity in the water is fascinating and we are loathe to leave them, but it is lunch time.

After lunch we started out for the museum in a narrow gauge car driven by a great Kanaka and drawn by two little mouse-colored mules. We leaned back luxuriously and took in the scenery with a grand air. Our way took us through Chinatown and Japantown, with just a little glimpse of Kanakatown. Leaving the car we had a short walk through the country, the odd feature of which to us was the large cactus plants that grew by the roadside. Many of them were ten or fifteen feet high with flat prickly leaves of a light green shade; they grew in patches all the way to the museum grounds.

The Bernice Pauahi Bishop Museum is a magnificent building erected in the grounds of the Kamehameha Schools. It was founded in 1889 by Charles Bishop in memory of his wife and bears the name of that princess. The building is of native gray basalt and has a solid, substantial yet attractive appearance. Within it is finished with koa wood from the neighboring island of Maui. The nucleus of the collection we saw within was the store of kapas, mats, calabashes, kahilis and native relics belonging to Mrs. Bishop, and bequeathed to her as the last of the Kamehamehas. To this was added by bequest the treasures of Queen Emma, and extensive private collections have been bought to supplement these, and, finally the treasures of the government museum are now here merged.

At present the energies of the museum are concentrated to securing a complete series of Hawaiian natural history, products and antiquities. The chief treasures of the museum are the kahilis and other feather ornaments. Nowhere in the world has the use of feather decorations attained the magnificence seen in the Hawaiian islands. The feathers used in modern times for this ornamentation are the spoils of many birds—peacocks, parrots, minas, and the domestic fowls, and are of many and varied brilliant tints; yellow, scarlet, green and crimson alternating with soberer blacks and whites.

At one time on these islands feather-hunting was a special vocation, and withal one requiring much skill and patience, as the birds most in demand frequented high inland mountains. I was told that a bird lime made from the bread fruit was the snare found most effective, and that a single tail feather would often bring in enough to keep the hunter and his family for months, so highly regarded were the rare specimens. The Hawaiian women of noble rank employed themselves in artistic feather work, much as in the days of our grand mothers, the court ladies of the mother country devoted themselves to royal tapestries.

A kahili to the uninitiated appears to be simply an overgrown feather duster. It is the insiguia of royalty and had its place at all court functions and kingly festivities. The last native king interred in the royal mausoleum was Kalakaua. At his funeral in 1891 waved dismally one hundred of these feather dusters. It seems to me the funeral plumes which decorate so senselessly the hearses of the dead to-day must be lineal descendants of the kahili of the Hawaiians. The largest of these giant plumes which we saw was four feet high and two and a half feet in diameter and was attached to a pole about eighteen feet long. Some of the poles were closely strung with alternate disks of tortoise shell and bones (human) and were gorgeous exceedingly.

These barbaric ornaments with their vivid coloring and historic associations were very striking. One from the collection of Queen Emma was made of blue peacock feathers, with orange-colored trimmings, and was mounted on a Kaulia spear pole. Another remarkable looking one consisted of a globe-shaped ball of gray and white feathers with a base line of bright red feathers surmounting a highly polished metal pole, and had been given as an offering of good will by the half-castes to the Prince of Hawaii. A unique one made by Ex-Queen Lil for Mrs. Bishop's funeral had white duck feathers with pale blue trimmings. I don't suppose Her Majesty will make any for the Republican ministers when they shall set out for the happy hunting grounds. The gem of the collection though, is of gray white tipped feathers, with a handle of tortoise shell and human bone. We were assured that the "Kumu" or principal bone is the right shin-bone of Kaneoneo, a noted chief killed in the battle of Nuuana in 1795, and that the other bones on the handle are of chiefs who fell in the same battle and were thus honored (?) by the conqueror.

A LONG TRIP.

From Nebraska and Texas to Washington in Prairie Schooners.

Yesterday morning four old-fashioned prairie schooners rolled into town and came to a halt on Third street, where the men got out and scattered over town in search of supplies therewith to replenish their stores. The party was composed of three families, two of which came from Texas and one from Nebraska. The Texans left home on the 13th of April and the Nebraskans turned their faces westward on May 22. They met at Green River, Wyoming, on July 3rd, and have traveled together since that time. They have one four-horse wagon and the rest are single teams. Their destination is Seattle, which the Texans claim is 3,000 miles from their starting point. They are lightly loaded and were making twenty-five miles a day until they struck the mountain region. The people and their stock show the effects of the trip, and the end of their journey is eagerly looked forward to. They were driven out of Texas and Nebraska by the drouth and failure of crops, and say they are anxious to get into a country where it rains—they do not care how much. They continued on their journey and will cross the Cascades by way of the Snoqualmie road.—Ellensburg Capital.

ANCIENT BONES.

Interesting Discoveries Among Mounds at Point Roberts.

Some interesting archaeological discoveries were made last week on Point Roberts by Mr. Andrew Leamy and a friend, in a mound about half a mile south of the boundary, on the bay side of the point. In searching for fresh mounds, they came across three in a straight line, each about 100 feet in breadth, 200 feet in length, and fully 30 feet in height, lying north and south. Work was commenced on the most southerly of the three, and after excavating a few feet, a tomb, circular in form and about two and a half feet in diameter, was encountered. The walls of the tomb were built with stone, in exactly the same form that a well is built up, but only about four feet high. At the bottom of the tomb were found the bones of a human being, placed in such manner that the head and heels were touching, or nearly so, the body, evidently, having been bent double and thrust in. The skull was round and unlike in shape any found in the vicinity, but was in such a decayed condition that it could not be preserved. A thigh and shin bone were found in a good state of preservation, but the rest of the bones crumbled on being touched.

Continuing the excavation, Mr. Leamy and his friend unearthed another skeleton, several feet lower and at a depth below the surface of fully six feet. Strange to say, this skeleton, which had, like the other, been buried in a doubled-up position, was perfect, and by careful sifting nearly every bone was recovered. The skull, unlike the one above it, was that of a Flathead, and contained every tooth but one, which was lost in handling. Still another skeleton was found on further excavation, but not in a very good state of preservation. An interesting find was also made in the shape of a bone spear head, about 12 inches long.

The mound is composed principally of shells, and its formation to its present height must have been the work of ages. On the top of the mound excavated by Mr. Leamy and his friends were two maple trees, each about four feet in diameter, the roots of which overlay the skeletons. Mr. C. G. Major estimates the age of these trees at 300 years, and how long the bodies were buried there before some six feet of shells accumulated on top of them and the trees took root from the seed, would be very difficult to estimate.

Mr. Leamy believes that a thorough excavation of this and the adjoining mounds to their base would reveal many interesting things from which much of value might be learned concerning the ancient inhabitants of this portion of the country.—Columbian.

KOOTENAY ACTIVITY.

Contractor McGillivray's Report on Affairs in the Mining Region.

Mr. D. McGillivray, the contractor, returned yesterday from the Kootenay, where he has been engaged in looking after his numerous business interests. As stated in yesterday's issue, he has obtained the contract for clearing the right of way for an extension of about 13 miles of the Arrow Lake branch of the C. P. R. Mr. McGillivray informed a reporter yesterday that he will leave for the Kootenay accompanied by 100 men, or if so many cannot be obtained right away, with as many as possible, the remainder to follow later, in order to begin operations on the work of clearing the right of way.

Speaking of the Kootenay generally, he said he regarded it as one of the most promising portions of the province. Contrasted with the commercial stagnation which prevails so largely on the coast, the mining districts seem particularly lively. Mr. Byron White, the manager of the Slocan Star, is building a concentrator with a capacity of 100 tons of ore per day, and the proprietors of the Silver King are actively engaged in completing arrangements for the construction of a smelter at Nelson. The C. P.R. survey parties are making surveys of the proposed route of the railway from Trail Creek to Rossland and will bring this preliminary work to as speedy a conclusion as possible. "The C. P. R.," said Mr. McGillivray, "are quite alive to the possibilities of the district and are determined to secure its trade for themselves and the province. Vancouver is very well represented and many Vancouverites are taking up location and carrying on development work, so that in the near future it is not unreasonable to expect that they will control mining properties of equal value to those now being operated by American capital. It would be well for the Vancouver Board of Trade to consider the advisibility of supplementing the deputation of the Victoria Board of Trade to the Kootenay region, by its own representatives, since such a manifestation of active interest could not fail to be beneficial."

The Le Roi mine at Rossland, Mr. McGillivray added, is shipping 100 tons of ore a day. Throughout the mining districts, wherever good surfaces appear, shafts are being sunk. Fully a thousand miners are conducting these operations. Rossland has at present a population of 3,000 and shows no signs of decadence. When the line which the C. P. R. has in contemplation is completed, Rossland will be able to maintain outside communication all the year round, a fact which cannot fail to add materially to its prosperity.—News Advertiser.

DEFENDER AND VIGILANT.

Trial Race Being Sailed to Decide Which Shall Defend the America Cup.

Standing of the Ball Teams in the Eastern League—Lacrosse on Saturday.

YACHTING.

THE GREAT RIVALS.

Highlands off Navesink, Aug. 29.—At 9.30, with the atmosphere still hazy, the Defender and Vigilant stood out towards the Hook. The Valkyrie was still at her moorings, with her head sails in stops, and apparently waiting for Lord Dunraven. The Defender passed the end of the Hook a few minutes after 9.30 a.m., followed by the Vigilant some three minutes later. At 11.10 the Bite Peter, the preparatory signal, was hoisted. The course is the first leg to the southeast, second leg north by east, one half east, third leg west by south. Both yachts carried mainsail, club topsails, stay sails and balloon jibs on the first leg, which is a broad reach. Following are the official times of the yachts at the start: Defender, 11.20.38; Vigilant, 11.20.40. At 11.35 the Defender was increasing the lead, and both yachts had taken in balloon jibs.

At 11:34 both yachts were standing along shore and now and then getting into calm spots. About three miles astern of the competing yachts was the British challenger Valkyrie, with her mainsail, club-topsails, foresail, jib and baby-jib topsail pulling nicely. She was slipping along rapidly through the water and making but little commotion. There were a number of yachts about her, and the attention of the accompanying fleet seemed to be divided between the racers and the Valkyrie. At 11:42 a.m. the wind had become so light that the Defender had practically lost steerage way in a calm spot which she had struck, but the Vigilant, further in shore, seemed to hold better wind, and was crawling up slightly. Valkyrie III. then broke out her balloon jib topsail, and at 11:45 was coming after the competing boats and seemed to carry a good breeze with her. All three yachts at 12:22 p.m., were almost at a standstill with the Valkyrie half a mile behind the American yachts. At 1:12 p.m., Defender and Vigilant are slowly creeping up towards the mark boat under the influence of a slight breeze from the southward. They are both heading off shore, and the Defender has a good lead. The Vigilant, at 1:15 p.m., caught a little breeze and began heading nicely towards the first mark, with the Defender ahead, but further out to sea, and almost hidden in the haze. Off shore, however, there was almost a dead calm, and although the Defender proved herself the better drifter of the two, during the last hour of the dreary wind hunt, the Vigilant, under the influence of the shore breeze, which reached her first, was cutting down the lead and looked likely, if the breeze held, to pull ahead and get around the first mark boat before Defender.

At 12:32 p.m., after coming within half a mile of the racers, the Valkyrie turned about and started back to the lightship.

Long Branch, Aug. 29.—At 12:57 p.m. the Defender and Vigilant are still becalmed, or almost so, about three miles from the first mark. Valkyrie is about a mile away on her way back to the lightship, and seemed to have caught the breeze, for she is going right along. Soon after the start the Defender had quite a stretch of open water between herself and her competitor. The Valkyrie is nearing the mark at the end of the first leg; Defender has the lead at present, but the Vigilant is gradually catching up. The wind is changing, blowing sometimes from one direction and sometimes from another, from W. to S. and very light.

The wind at 1:25 p.m. out in the bay had shifted to S. E., giving the Defender the best windward position. Both yachts were then close hauled on the starboard tack, and were standing off shore, the Defender having a lead of over a mile on the Vigilant. The wind was very light, however, and the yachts were not making much progress towards the first mark boat, in the direction of which both were beating.

Both boats were standing off shore on the starboard tack at 1:40 p.m., and the Vigilant having caught a little wind, began pulling up on the Defender. She was quite a distance away, however, and somewhat to leeward. Both were moving very slowly, and the race has become very monotonous. The heat ashore was very great; there was less breeze at sea than here, so that it can be readily imagined that those on board the yachting fleet and excursion boats must have suffered a great deal.

The Vigilant turned the stake boat about 2:06 4-5.

Valkyrie is nearly opposite Navesink Highlands on the way back to the Hook, and is practically becalmed. This illustrates the utter lack of sailing wind.

Both boats, after rounding the mark boat, broke out their light kites for a run to the second mark, off Rockaway coast, heading north by one-half east. Defender set her balloon jib to port, while the Vigilant broke out her spinnaker to starboard, and in addition, set her balloon jib to port. The wind was light from the southward. At 2:25 p.m. both had entirely disappeared in the haze. A squall seems to be coming from the westward.

The Vigilant rounded the second mark at 3:22:20.

At 2:45 the haze lifted, and the watchers here were able to get a good view of the yachts. Both had booms to starboard and spinnakers to port, and were running down before the wind at a lively rate, and seemed as if they would soon round the second mark. Defender was still well ahead of the Vigilant, but had not increased her lead. There is no likelihood of the race being finished before 3:30 p.m. At 2:55 the wind hauled around to west northwest and is blowing about 12 miles an hour, with a sprinkling of rain. Just as the yachts approached the second mark, Defender appeared to be leading by about nine minutes.

Far Rockaway, L. I.—Shortly after 3:15 p.m. Defender took in her spinnaker and rounded the stake, her time being 3:15:30.

Torquay, Aug. 28.—The Niagara beat the Isolde and Luna to-day in the race for 20 raters, held under the auspices of the Royal Torquay Yacht Club.

BASEBALL.

EASTERN LEAGUES.

In the Canadian Amateur League a great game was played on the 19th instant between the Maple Leafs of Guelph and the Alerts of London, the former team winning by 1 to 0, and the aggregate number of errors on both sides being only three.

In the National League Cleveland heads the list with Baltimore a close second. Although New York is in 10th place, the Giants have lost but ten games more than Cleveland. Anson's colts are in 5th place.

Toronto, the only Canadian team in the Eastern League, is last on the list with Springfield and Providence fighting hard for first place.

The fight for first position in the National League this year promises to develop the most exciting finish ever witnessed. Although New York is in the 10th place, she can hardly be counted out of the game, as the Giants are noted for spurts at the end of the season. The race is so close that a couple of wins would change Brooklyn's position from 9th to 4th.

LAWN TENNIS.

Queens Royal, Niagara-on-the-Lake, Aug. 28.—The Canadian international tennis championship tournament began here this morning, with an entry of over 70 players. The tournament was delayed until the national championship at Newport had been decided, in order that the American players might take part. A special party left immediately after the final match at Newport yesterday and were expected to arrive here in time for this morning's play, but a number of accidents occurred to delay them and they did not put in an appearance until to-night. One of the features of the week will be the ladies' events, in which Mrs. Sydney Smith, champion of Canada, and Miss Julette Atkinson, champion of the United States, will take part. The ladies' events will be championship singles, mixed doubles and novice singles, the winner of which will receive the handsome silver trophy presented to the association by Mr. Langdon Wilkes, of New York. To-morrow secretary W. S. Griffiths expects to have everything well under way, and some exciting tennis is promised.

LACROSSE.

THE BIG MATCH.

Mr. J. H. Senkler, of Vancouver, who has been giving such splendid satisfaction in the matches played on the Mainland, has been agreed upon as the referee for the match between Victoria and Vancouver at the Caledonia grounds on Saturday. This guarantees fair play for both sides and no roughness to mar the pleasure of the spectators. Both teams are hard at work practising for the event, and a fast, scientific game should result. Victoria will have a stronger home than she has played this season, while the old defence, with Coldwell in goal, should prove almost impregnable. Vancouver, on the other hand will have to put her best men, Spain, Quigley and Suckling, on the defence, which will rather weaken the home, although they have a good field, which will help them to keep the ball around Victoria's flags.

THE RIFLE.

AT OTTAWA TO-DAY.

Ottawa, Aug. 29.—Another beautiful day on Rideau range, and good shooting is the result. There was a mistake in the Henshaw match last night. A range officer walked away with twelve tickets, five of which won prizes, among the winners being Gunner Sloan of British Columbia, who got $6; Lt. Browne, of Winnipeg, who got $5. Harp, of the Highlanders, Toronto, made 14 consecutive bulls this morning and has won the aggregate. His score for the grand aggregate was 397.

B. C. MEN STILL AHEAD.

Ottawa, Aug. 28.—In the Kirkpatrick match Private Hinds, 45th, was 1st, getting $20, with 95 points. J. F. Chamberlain gets $6, with 89, and Turnbull $4, with 84.

Among the hundred competitors who will fire for the Governor-General's prize are C. N. Chamberlain, J. C. Chamberlain and Langley, all of the B. C. team, who won $5, $5 and $4, respectively in the grand aggregate. They are well up in the list and stand a good chance of going to Bisley.

CHESS.

Hastings, England, Aug. 28.—To-day the eighteenth round of the international chess masters tournament played at Brasseys Institute, results as follows. Tinsberg beat Albin in a French defence, after 42 moves; Lasker beat Vergani in a Ruy Lopez, after 24 moves; Tarrasch beat Janowiski in a Queen's Gambit, declined after 28 moves.

THE TURF.

ANOTHER NOTCH DOWN.

Fleetwood, N.Y., Aug.29.—In the races to-day, purse, $5,000, the first heat free for all, pacing, was won by Robert J.; Mascot second, John R. Gentry third, Joe Patchen fourth. Time 2.06¼. Second heat, Robert J. first, John R. Gentry second, Mascot third, Joe Patchen fourth. Time 2.04¼, which beats all previous records for this track.

THE BAWNMORE WRECKED.

The Crew, Except Two, Saved—The Vessel a Total Wreck.

San Francisco, Aug. 29.—The steamer Bawnmore has been wrecked near Bandon, Ore., and 28 of her crew of 30 taken off safely. One of the crew was killed, and another fatally injured. The steamer will be a total loss. She is lying on the rocks in a heavy sea, and is pounding to pieces. The Bawnmore belongs to W. R. Grace & Co., of New York.

American News.

Duluth, Minn., Aug. 29.—The Northern Steamship Company, which operates James J. Hill's boats, has issued a circular, signed by President Hill, appointing W. Farrington, present general manager of the Eastern Minnesota road, vice-president of the steamship company, to succeed Geo. Gordon, of Buffalo. Farrington will have charge of the big fleet which, including the two passenger boats, Northland and Northwest. Vice-President Farrington has appointed Francis B. Clarke, St. Paul, general traffic manager of the company. Further changes are expected.

They have queer stone cutters down in Maine. Deacon Hackett lost his second wife lately, a scrawny and shrewish woman, whose loss was not an unmixed sorrow. Still, the deacon dutifully decided to give her a monument. Being rather "near," he haggled with the village stone cutter as to the size of the slab, and finally chose a very narrow one at a bargain. The inscription was to be as follows:

SARAH HACKETT.
"Lord, she was thine!"

But the stone was so narow that there was no room for the last letter, stoehs was no room for the last letter, so the stone cutter left it out with the result:

SARAH HACKETT.
"Lord, she was thin!"
